

Governors show their support for the Preschool Development Grant Birth Through Five (PDG B-5)

The Preschool Development Grant Birth through Five (PDG B-5) program is a competitive federal grant program that plays an essential role in ensuring state child care and early learning systems are as effective and efficient as possible. States can use funds for a wide range of efforts, including capacity building, increasing family engagement, creating infrastructure, providing direct services, and piloting new work.

Created as part of the bipartisan Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) in 2015, this program has enjoyed broad support for nearly a decade. States continue to seek PDG B-5 funding because they realize the necessity of PDG B-5 in ensuring our nation's youngest learners have the best opportunities to develop and thrive. Governors from states that were awarded PDG B-5 funding emphasize how critical these funds are to supporting their early care and learning systems.

Learn more about what they have to say about the positive impact that PDG B-5 funds have on their states:

Governor Kay Ivey (R-AL) - 2026

"Investing in our youngest Alabamians is one of the most important things we can do to strengthen our state's future. This federal funding allows Alabama to continue building a coordinated, efficient early childhood education system that supports families, strengthens our workforce and ensures children across our state have the opportunity to succeed from the very beginning."

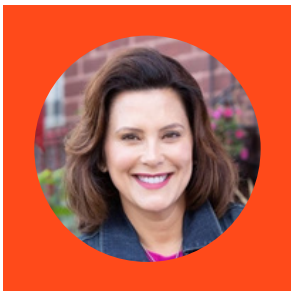

Governor Sarah Huckabee Sanders (R-AR)- 2026

"From day one, my administration has been committed to expanding access to quality education across Arkansas, and this grant reflects the Trump administration's confidence in not only what we are doing but also how we are doing it. Our mission is simple: invest in the next generation and ensure every kid gets the attention they deserve."

Governor Andy Beshear (D-KY) - 2022

"My administration will always put education first, and that starts with our youngest students, so they have the strong start in school and life that they deserve. This is an investment in our kids and also in our future workforce and economy. It's personal to me as a dad, because I want all of our kids to have the best opportunities possible right here."

Governor Gretchen Whitmer (D-MI) - 2024

"Child care is essential for working families so parents can go to work knowing their kids are safe and cared for... [PDG B-5] will invest in our early childhood educators, improving their pay and benefits, drive down costs for families, and support our kids... Let's keep working with our federal partners and state legislature to improve access to safe, high-quality, and affordable child care for all Michigan families."

Governor Joe Lombardo (R-NV) - 2023

"We know that offering strong early childhood education opportunities is a pivotal part of ensuring future academic success. I'm grateful that this grant will help our state better serve Nevada's youngest students."

Governor Mike DeWine (R-OH) - 2023

"The largest group of Ohioans living in poverty are children aged five and under. This grant allows Ohio to better serve these children by creating stronger cross program coordination and higher quality programming in publicly funded childcare, public preschools, early intervention and home visiting that form a strong foundation for successful learning."

Governor Dan McKee (D-RI) - 2024

"Through this child care investment, Rhode Island's youngest children will have continued access to educational, social, and emotional supports they need to succeed. Our state agencies are in lockstep to ensure we're delivering results in alignment with the goals set in the Rhode Island 2030 plan."

Governor Phil Scott (R-VT) - 2023

"Investing in and supporting early childhood education is a top priority for Vermont, and this grant will go a long way in supporting our efforts. I want to thank our federal partners, Building Bright Futures, and all of our partners for their continued commitment to building strong foundations for future generations."

Governor Tony Evers (D-WI) - 2021

"As I've said before, Wisconsin's success is directly aligned with the health of our early care and education system. The first five years are essential to the future success of our young learners, and we don't get a do-over."

About First Five Years Fund

The first five years last forever. At First Five Years Fund, we work to protect, prioritize, and build bipartisan support for quality child care and early learning programs at the federal level. Reliable, affordable, and high-quality early learning and child care can be transformative, not only enhancing a child's prospects for a brighter future but also bolstering working parents and fostering economic stability nationwide.
